CARRIER-PREFERRED DISPLAY

You can request an availability, schedule or timetable display that is controlled by a target airline. You can do this for any airline that has a carrier-preferred display agreement with Amadeus.

The Carrier-Preferred display shows flights that the airline has chosen to display for the route you specify in your entry, such as its own flights or flights of partner airlines. The Display can also include flight connections or routings that are not normally shown on a neutral availability display due to long elapsed flying times or excessive mileage.

DIRECT ACCESS DISPLAY

Direct access provides you with direct access to the Reservation systems of major airlines. Using standard Amadeus Entries, you can obtain current information on availability of Seats through a real time link between Amadeus and the airline. By accessing the airline's reservation system directly, you can see the last seat available on a flight, without the Airline rejecting the booking after end transaction. Flights can be sold even if they are on request, or show a waitlist status on other types of Amadeus display. You can see up to a maximum of 26 classes of service in a direct access display.
